Now that the snows of 2015 are gone and we have rediscovered grass in our back yards, time to step out for an evening or two and enjoy the more moderate weather.

With that in mind, let me direct you to one of the more perfect spots for that nice evening out: The Weaversville Inn and Jessica's Tea Room, hosted by Chef and Owner, Mark Prostko.

The Weaversville Inn has been a Lehigh Valley dining destination since 1835, with Mark taking over in 2005. Since then, Mark has been awarded the Readers Choice for the Best Tea Room in the Lehigh Valley every year. He has always provided many a diner some of the more tasty and innovative dinners around, too.

Along with his diverse and mouth-watering entrees and desserts, the Weaversville Inn also hosts a wide variety of entertainment and special events.

At the top of that list is the upcoming "Titanic Weekend" on April 17 and 18. Along with a Titanic-themed dinner, your night also includes period actors, stories and displays from the Titanic itself. Make your reservations now for an entertaining evening taking you back in time... without the iceberg.

Also on tap, Mark will host an Easter Sunday Brunch Buffet on Sunday, April 5 and a Weyerbacher Beer Dinner complete with a four-course dinner and beer pairings on April 30. On May 1, Mark is formulating plans for a "Gangsters take over the Weaversville Inn" which will turn the Inn into a Speak Easy, along with a Murder Mystery.

All of this is in addition to the many great meals the Inn serves at lunchtime and in the evening. For further information and menus, please check out the Weaversville Inn and Jessica's Tea Room at www.jessicastearoom.com. Trust me... you'll be glad you did.
